

I disagree with the 10 minute before handing off a call regulation--this rule may create an unnecessary barrier for effective communication-either party may not understand the other and a handoff would be the rational response. This rule only serves to inhibit communication.